Time To Consider Your Summer Body

When spring arrives, many people begin thinking about spending time outdoors and enjoying the more welcoming weather. Here at The Plastic Surgery Group, we know that spring is also the ideal time to consider undergoing plastic surgery procedures such as breast enhancement, liposuction and tummy tucks that will improve the body's contour. Getting back to normal activities takes less time than many people think. The recovery period varies by procedure, but there is still plenty of time to get your body in the best shape possible before you need to get into those shorts and bathing suits.

In fact, spring is one of the busiest times of the year and one of the most popular plastic surgery procedures to get ready for summer is breast enhancement. Breast augmentation is about more than boosting size or looking fantastic in a bathing suit. It's about feeling confident in your own skin - being able to wear what you want and feel good about the way you look. Breast augmentation can give you a more shapely figure than you've ever had or restore volume lost as a result of pregnancy and breast feeding. For many women, it's a way to feel more confident about breast size, shape, or fullness.

Body contouring is another great choice during the spring months. Procedures such as abdominoplasty and liposuction are helping people tailor their body and create a better silhouette.

The popularity of abdominoplasties has skyrocketed and four times as many women undergo this very effective surgery than did a decade ago. Last year, more than 150,000 tummy tucks were performed in the United States. Abdominoplasty is also known as a “tummy tuck” - a procedure to improve the look of the midsection by removing excess skin and fat while tightening abdominal muscles. Liposuction procedures can create a slimmer, more balanced figure by removing stubborn fat deposits on such areas as the upper arms, hips, waist, and thighs.

Body contouring procedures of course improve how men and women look, but they do a remarkable job of helping improve how people feel about themselves as well. Clothes fit comfortably and when you're out enjoying the weather there's no need to feel awkward or uncomfortable about your appearance.

Laser Skin Resurfacing

As we age, our skin begins to change as a result of several different life factors. The natural collagen within the skin begins to diminish and skin may sag and droop. Smoking, alcohol consumption, sun exposure, nutrition and more can also lead to the development of wrinkles and fine lines within the skin. Other skin conditions such as acne, brown spots and chicken pox can leave unattractive blemishes on the skin.

Laser skin resurfacing is a minimally invasive cosmetic procedure used to reduce the appearance of wrinkles, fine lines and other skin irregularities. It offers patients many advantages over traditional resurfacing procedures such as chemical peels and microdermabrasion, as it practically eliminates side effects such as discomfort, bleeding and bruising. Sun avoidance is important in the first several weeks after a facial resurfacing procedure so early spring is an ideal time to have this done.
